

Becoming a Multidimensional Being – Part II

And so the journey continues. Have you been having prophetic dreams lately? Seeing yourself on a planet with two suns? Seeing areas flooding and helicopters flying above? Talking to beings in your dream state whom you seem to know but don't think you've ever really met? Feeling like you've gained 50 pounds and your body's really dense, not allowing you to move as quickly as you did before? You're not alone.

The other telltale symptom is not only forgetting what you were just about to do (covered in last month's article), but finding yourself staring at the panel on your car, or at equipment that you've used everyday, trying to figure out what it is and what you're supposed to do with it! No, you're not going crazy; you are just spending more time out of this physical reality as your essence is trying to becoming more accustomed to the new vibration and frequency that will confront us, permanently, very soon. The problem is, when we return back to this physical reality in our current bodies, our conscious mind is still disconnected or in a "freeze" state. So as we try to refocus on the familiar, it appears unfamiliar until we've readjusted ourselves to the physical frequency.

This is not a onetime deal folks, this is the program. We are making a transition, like it or not. Either we get with the program or flail around in fear when the time comes. It's not the first time this has happened on this planet. But the powers that be who have known about this, don't want us, the people, to know. That's because keeping people in fear is a tried and true method of keeping people from making the transition and freeing themselves, finally, from the karmic cycle of master-slave. If you leave your body in fear, you're fodder for the next program. And likeminded souls, including masters and slaves, travel in likeminded circles. For more information on this topic, see my Shaman's Conference series in the Director's Archive, beginning in Sept. 2000, or to get right to the point, see The Legacy of the Gods, Sept 2003 and what you can do about it, Atoning with the Gods, Sept. 2004.

Will there be Earth changes and will they affect us? You bet. They're already occurring and they're not happenstance. Even San Francisco, where I live, will be effected, one way or another. We'll either all choose to leave together, which may even include the entire physical, geographical area, or some of us may stay behind to help others make the transition at a later date.

What is the role of the current U.S. Administration and the world fundamentalists in this program? Aside from believing that they are hastening the "end times" program which will bring about their salvation, they are actually creating very bad karma for themselves and will find themselves in the same restricted, 3-D reality, fighting the same wars and playing the same games until they figure out the program and find the Christ light in their hearts. The good news for the rest of us is that we'll be rid of them, and for those who choose to return and replenish the Earth, it will be a kindler, gentler Earth, for real. And for many who choose to come back, they will leave and return "in the body".

Not everyone will choose to come back to Earth. Some are here only as observers and ascended masters, who will move onto other realms following this transition. In other words, been there, done that, time to move on and “get a life”; that is, a more ascended one. There will be no final judgment by a God being; you are your own judge. Your own contract that you made before you came down here and your ensuing actions while you’re here will determine the options you’ll have next. Will the transition be painful? If that was part of your contract or you didn’t fulfill it and you needed to experience pain, there will be pain. But once the physical body is gone, you will be free, and able to assess whether you met your own contract, and then move on accordingly. While you will no longer have a physical body that feels pain, your soul, reviewing your deeds, may well experience “memory” pain and thus recycle into another program where you will have another few thousand millennia or so to try to get it right, yet again.

We are all multidimensional beings; we’ve just denied that part of ourselves through our linear, institutional programming. Many are waking up and realizing there’s life after death. In fact, that’s really the only life there is because the body is only temporary housing. That also means, literally, that there’s light at the end of the tunnel. We need only shed our self-imposed prison gowns to realize that we’ve all been fooled into fear and intolerance as a control mechanism to keep us unaware and in the dark. This whole 3-D scenario was really only a program that was set up by low-vibration entities to feed themselves and their very powerful institutions that are trying to control our current master-slave reality. And in the end, we’re the students who--to graduate to the next level--have to wake up, realize that the game’s over, and free ourselves from the shackles of 3-D. That’s what the 2012 shift and multidimensionality is all about.

Happy Independence Day--Live long and prosper!!
