

The Filibuster of 2012

I can't help but laugh at denialists who still do not see the writing on the wall--those very obvious signs that we are approaching Ground Zero. From the news today that an ice sheet the size of Manhattan broke off in Antarctica, to the horrible tornado force winds that are hitting the country blowing dogs, people, and inanimate objects to their doom, there is definitely change blowing in the wind. A storm here last week uprooted many surprised people, including me.

Then there's the sudden swine flu that mysteriously popped up and swept Mexico killing many Mexicans, which then migrated its way across the globe on a less lethal path, leaving one to wonder if this virus was really random (I think not). Under the radar this week have been the stirrings of a major political upheaval over the release of classified torture memos, continued financial fiascos and lack of accountability with politicians making umpteen excuses for the mess, increased crime and local governments releasing felons and decreasing felonious prosecutions due to lack of resources and support, etc., etc. Then there are the radio and TV talking heads that still don't get it and assume that given time, things will go back to the way they were: but the question is, "the way they were when?"

Some of us have known since birth that the world and our reality weren't as they physically appeared or manifested. It is only now that what we had anticipated so many years ago, but resisted in our fragile human minds, is coming to pass. As such, it is time to get off the fence because we can no longer straddle our realities. Some of us are already planning for the unspeakable and inevitable. Others not in the know are still in denial, and continue to think that everything is business as usual and will eventually settle down. I'm afraid nothing is going to settle down and we're only seeing the beginning of the end.

The swine flu, which is the latest calamity to hit us, is being used to create another 9/11-like fear despite the fact that the new Obama Admin promised to change politics as usual. But their reaction and their reactive planning have been business as usual. People with no access to healthcare or housing can expect the worst. There are numerous private camps just waiting to house the helpless and the disenfranchised. Private enterprises will make a "killing" off these camps, just as they are going to make a "killing" off of viruses and their vaccines for those who can afford the antidotes (such as ex-DOD Sec't'y Donald Rumsfeld, who has stock in Tamiflu). For those who can't afford healthcare and get ill, you're history as there is no hospital or healthcare system that will cater to you. Stop depending on the government and start to form your own communities with whatever skills and resources you have available as a group. And move to the hills where you're out of the line of fire and can manage some type of water and gardening system. Don't expect the government to take care of you, at least not for the near future.

That brings me to 2012. I believe that many in the top levels of government know that there will be some sort of shift. However, they also know that they can exploit the masses at this time and will do so for as long as they can. They are most effective at shouting down the "conspiracy theorists" and as such, continue along their merry, toxic ways, spending and exploiting like there is no tomorrow. The truth is, in this reality, there will be no tomorrow, at least not as we have known it. That makes it easy for the worst powermongers to deny scientific facts (global warming), act without accountability, do illegal things, play to our worst fears, and generally exploit the population while trying to figure out a way to protect themselves. Along the way, they manage to successfully convince others that there will be no major changes and that everything will go back to normal.

Obama, unfortunately, is just another pawn of the whole misguided system. Like every other president, he is being manipulated by unseen puppet masters. If it's true that he was not aware that a plane in his presidential fleet was flown over NYC (to the distress of New Yorkers), he's as much in the dark as anyone. All I can add is that everything that is coming down now, from secret plane flights, to economic disasters, to swine flu, to torture memos, is part of the unraveling of the matrix system that has ruled us for the last 3600 years. And each incident is meant to terrorize us more and simultaneously take the heat off of even more ominous events that are unraveling behind the scenes.

As far as 2012 and expectations for either the end-of-the-world or a brave-new-world, it is up to each of us to walk-the-walk away from the drama. You can no longer sit on the fence. The fence is collapsing and if you jump to the side of false promises, you'll crumble and fall with everything else. The powers-that-be gain their power from us; if we walk away from them, give up our credit cards, our dependence on their systems, and just say NO to their lies and spin, they will no longer have power over us and won't be able to filibuster our impending reality anymore. When we are all caught up in the drama and fear, we feed their lust and power and they gain more power over us. So make the break; instead of allowing them to filibuster our truths, it's time to filibuster their lies and fear mongering and move on. Only you know the most effective way to do that, but do it now before you get squashed under the crumbling avalanche.