

Binding and Burning Toxic Planetary Energies

On May 20th, nine of us trekked to a remote Southern location near four corners to hold the New Fire Ceremony that would bind and then release the extreme energies that are dividing our planet and polarized entities at this time. The ceremony traditionally takes place when the Sun and the Pleiades are in conjunction and pass through the zenith at midnight, directly over the Pyramid of Kukulcan (Quetzalcoatl) in Chichen Itza. The plumed serpent (Kukulcan) is actually the symbol of the sun-Pleiades conjunction, and its zenith occurs 60 days after the Spring Equinox. The ceremony is tied to the Calendar Round and is typically performed on a macrocosmic scale every 52 years when there is also a sun-Pleiades conjunction with Venus. Due to the existing planetary dramas and traumas, we decided to do a microcosmic ceremony on that date, minus the Venus influence.

The alignment signifies the actual infusion of light waves that will usher in the new Quetzalcoatl energy on May 20th, 2012. There will also be a solar eclipse on that date. However, the May 20th/21st sun-Pleiades alignment will be significant for the next 200 years and ceremony can be performed on a yearly basis as a microcosm of the final event. The latitudes of consequence in current times have been 19-20 degrees N but because the earth is shifting, the latitudes are also shifting and have little bearing right now on where the ceremony is performed.

This ceremony is traditionally performed beginning in a tunneled area under one of the great pyramids; at Chichen Itza it is possible that it was performed in one of the underground water caverns that were used for ceremony or even possibly in an underground chamber of the Pyramid of Kukulcan. During each of the 13 initiatory steps, the initiates would move one step up each level of the pyramid until they were at the "Hill of the Star" (step 7 at the top) having traversed the 7 nights of the underworld (the human element). They would perform their burn ceremony, and then would work their way back down bringing the new galactic energy with them: a total of 13 steps.

The New Fire Ceremony is known as "the Binding of the Years, "the weaving of the One and the Many", and the "end-of-age conflagration". It involves observation of the Pleiades at the end of each 52 or 104 year calendar round cycle to determine the direction of incoming light waveforms. It binds us to a new cycle of light waves so that we can receive the new sacred codes tied to the Calendar Round (Tzolkin calendar of 13 moons). It also involves the reciting of 13 pages of encoded readings comprising 365 lines (solar year) that are meant to energetically and spiritually move us from the womb of the earth (red) to the firmament of the cosmic web (blue) and back. That is, it moves the energies of the "son" of the Earth (sun at the nadir) to the great "solar sun" that streams through the cosmic web combust the Pleiades (at the zenith), binds them at the solar plexus (yellow) at both the macro- and micro-cosmic levels, and then burns and infuses a new light energy imprint back to the source.

NOTE: At our spring equinox ceremony, these red and blue energies were activated as we anchored Quetzalcoatl (blue ray) into Mother Earth (red ray) to seed her, and then passed the energies back through ourselves. At this ceremony, we invoked both light energies but this time took the "son" from the womb and merged it with the galactic center sun at our own solar center: the solar plexus.

We performed a noon ceremony on the 20th at the most southern point at our sacred site and acted out a 7-step ritual. During this binding ceremony we performed a fusing and 7-step movement to merge and carry polar energies which were symbolically meant to reduce us to total despair. We carried written resolutions with the most polarizing issues that we sought to resolve. We climbed from the most southern site and carried the unsterilized and fused energies for 12 hours, from the noon ceremony to the midnight ceremony.

For the midnight burn ceremony, we moved to a higher point around a fire pit, faced the North Star, and performed the full New Fire initiation, making our cosmic descent. During this 13-step initiatory reading/meditation, we were taken from the creation of the earth to the end-time conflagration. We revisited the binding (fusing) of the polarized energies 12-hours earlier, and then performed a 7-step movement that burned the false body and brought down the galactic light so that we would become beings of one light frequency. We burned all personal negativity, animosity, and the material trappings of the ego.

For those holding and carrying fear, hostility, anger, and false egos (all of us), we symbolically “tore the true eternal heart and soul from the false being” and offered them to the fire so that what remained was “the Many united in One” (Note: This ceremony was originally translated as a literal heart sacrifice but the true meaning was degraded by warriors, not priests. Our solar plexus, not our heart, holds our fears, rage, and hate. Our solar plexus keeps our heart from opening). We burned our written resolutions in the fire. All material and physical matter was symbolically reduced to ash and sterilized through fire.

Following the burning, there was an unencumbered flow of energy from the galactic center to the earth so that the blue ray encoded us with the new DNA imprint. Some participants had immediate energy feedbacks. Because this drama is currently playing itself out on the macro- and microcosmic scale, we anticipate that the final resolution won't culminate until after May 20th, 2012.

John Major-Jenkins sums up this polarity issue using a correlation between the round calendar zenith cosmology and the Long Count end-date galactic cosmology for the 21st century: "As revealed on the murals of Chichen Itza, a union of opposed political/cosmological ideologies took place in the ninth century AD" between the Toltec and the Maya, ending in “resolution”. These conflicts of ideologies during ancient times are similar to modern-day battles between Israel and Palestine, and all fundamentalist, political, and personal duality and conflict at this time. The resolution represents the possibility of successfully reconciling such differences, on a microcosmic and macrocosmic level. Having achieved full polarization and complete expression, both sides can finally meet.

Our ceremony was meant to bind these opposing forces at the center, and reconcile them through the burning of superficial and ego-driven motivators. This could only come about through the pain of exposing oneself to one's shadow and burning the false ego and body to get beyond all personal, social, cultural, institutional, national, and planetary limitations.
